

Home Weatherization Assistance Program

The Home Weatherization Assistance Program in Utah received significant funding under the federal Recovery Act. This program provides for weatherization of homes, including adding more insulation, sealing leaks and modernizing heating and air conditioning equipment. Homes that participate in this free program will see an average savings of up to $300 in their yearly home heating and cooling costs. Only individuals or families making less than a specified income are eligible to participate in the program. Maximum income depends on your household size.
